About the Seminar

The seminar aims at providing platform for unravelling hitherto unexplored and un-evaluated, diverse literary and legal narratives which will enable the academia to examine it in relation to changing contemporary context. It can encourage the participants in highlighting larger national, social and cultural issues as it intends to explore legal and literary aspects of cultural discourse. The seminar seeks to explore women's questions through diverse legal, literary and historical narratives pertaining to their rights, choices and agency. In the light of growing body of research in the field of women's studies and literature, we propose to focus on some key debates and critical questions which open up new ways of addressing the intersections of law, gender and literature.

Sub-themes:

- Women, law, and literary narratives.
- Women's agency in fiction.
- Legal discourses and women's question.
- Narrative and rhetoric in legal discourses.
- Law and customary practices in literary representations.
- Law, literature, and feminism.
- Discourse from literary narratives to judicial pronouncements to legislature.
