Indian Association for Reliability and Statistics (IARS)

The Indian Association for Reliability and Statistics (IARS), established in January 2014 under the Haryana Registration and Regulation of Societies Act, 2012, aims to promote statistical education and its practical applications in both academia and industry. Recognizing the growing importance of advanced scientific and technological developments especially in Reliability Theory and Engineering IARS serves as a vital platform for researchers and professionals. It annually organizes conferences, seminars, workshops, and meetings to foster innovation and knowledge exchange among scholars in Statistics, Mathematics, Computer Science, Operations Research, and related fields. These events encourage young practitioners to present new ideas and applications that contribute to the discipline. IARS also publishes the International Journal of Statistics and Reliability Engineering (IJSRE) (ISSN: 2350-0174 print, 2656-2378 online), a peer-reviewed journal that disseminates high-quality research and supports the Association's mission of advancing statistical science and reliability engineering.
