History of Youth Red Cross

The involvement and contribution of young people in the activities of the Red Cross has an interesting history. The genesis of their engagement originated in the province of Quebec, Canada in 1914, when school children first participated in the humanitarian work of the Red Cross work by making bandages, dressings and other comforts for soldiers. The idea soon spread to other Canadian provinces. By 1915, this idea spread to Europe while in United States, eleven million school children were engaged in similar activities.

During the World War I, several countries encouraged young people to assist in Red Cross work. By 1918 formal youth sections were organized in Australia, Canada, Italy and United States.

The creation of League of Red Cross (now International Federation of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies) in 1919 increased the emphasis on peacetime activities of Red Cross through the establishment of a coordination body for National Societies which to a great extent helped in the expansion of youth programmes throughout the world.

By 1921, youth sections had been created in eight countries: Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, New Zealand, Poland, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Yugoslavia. The following year France, Japan, Romania and Sweden also established similar youth sections, bringing the total to at least 16 countries.

In 1922, the youth programme of the Red Cross was officially recognized and supported by Resolution No. XVIII adopted by the General Council of League of Red Cross Societies.

Expansion of Red Cross youth programmes to young people outside the schools or other than those attending educational institutions were embodied in one of the General Council resolution XIX.

By 1935, 51 countries had sections focused on young people, with total membership of 15 million with a 3 point programme bringing the motto “I serve”.

Today, about 100 National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies have sections dedicated to engaging young people and statistics show that as much as half of all Red Cross and Red Crescent volunteers in the world are young people.

The Indian Red Cross Society first engaged young people in its work in 1925 with the first unit set up in Punjab in 1926 soon followed by similar units in Delhi, Madhya Pradesh, Mumbai and Uttar Pradesh.

According to the International Labour Organization report, about 40 percent of the total Indian population is in the age group of 13-35 years. The Red Cross, through its junior and youth programmes plays an important role in challenging and guiding this young energy in the cause of humanitarian action.

Active, Junior and Youth Red Cross groups offer branches a formidable strength both in times of emergency and times of preparedness. Ample opportunities must be given to young people to feel them empowered to take humanitarian action, offering their strengths, energy ideas and innovation to our movement and to their communities.

Valuing the Role of Youth

Youth Red Cross programmes are an integral part of the strategic approach taken by the Indian Red Cross Society. We value the diverse and important roles and that young people perform as innovators, Cross-cultural ambassadors, peer educators, community mobilisers, and most importantly, agents of behavioural change and advocates for vulnerable people.

While working alongside older generations in a spirit of mutual respect, young people bring much needed ideas and skills. The promotion of knowledge transfer and growth, combined with the personal guidance that older, more experienced volunteers of the Red Cross can offer, is seen as a key approach to develop future generation of leaders.

Our youth programmes help the Indian Red Cross Society to implement the fundamental principles of our movement through international humanitarian work, the protection of health and life, community service, promotion of national and international friendship and understanding by using the international links of the movement.

Red Cross Emblem

Red Cross Emblem

The Red Cross on white background was the original protection symbol declared at the 1864 Geneva Convention. The idea to introduce a uniform and neutral protection symbol as well as its specific design originally came from Dr. Louis Appia and General Henn Dufour, founding of the international committee. The Red Cross is defined as a protection symbol in Article 7 of the 1864 Geneva 38 of the 1949 Geneva Convention (“ For the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded and Sick in Armed Forces in the Field”). There is an unofficial agreement within the Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement that the shape of the cross should be a cross composed of five squares. However, regardless of the shape, any Red Cross on white background should be valid and must be recognized as a protection symbol in conflict. Out of the 186 national societies which are currently recognized by the ICRC, 152 are using the Red Cross as their official organization emblem. In addition, the Red Cross is currently used by the national society of Tuvalu which has applied for official recognition.

As per Geneva Convention only four recognized emblems are to be used to denote the following :(1)Military Chaplains (2) For the care of injured and sick armed forces members (3)Armed force medical, (4)International Red Cross Crescent organization

Relation to the Flag of Switzerland

According to the ICRC the emblem adopted was formed by reversing the colours of the Swiss Flag. However, according to jurist and Red Cross historian Pierre Bossier no clear evidence of this origin has been found; the concept of the design was chosen to compliment the country in which the convention at which it was adopted was held, was promoted later to counter the objections of Turkey that the flag was a Christian symbol. This was enshrined in the 1906 revision of the Convention.
